Subject: Broadband in rural missouri

Hello, I have just finished reading the article concerning broadband in the ozark border rural missouri paper. I live just 5 mile west and south of the new 4 lane hwy 60 in Ellsinore, Missouri. Our options for internet are 1) through our cell provider, or 2) through a satellite provider. We currently use Excede wildblue satellite internet, we pay $65 dollars a month for the luxury of having 10gb. Our son is going into the 7th grade and computer access is necessary for school work. They have DSL internet at the school and north of hwy 60, but we were told by our local phone company that they would have to lay the DSL cables under the new hwy in order to provide our area with DSL. That's not going to happen, it is much too costly. I believe that the internet is not only luxury but also a necessity to us rural Missourians, in this day and time.

Please bring broadband to our area.

Sincerely

Gary and Jennifer Robertson
