Subject: Access to broadband internet article

Hello, I am writing this email in response to an article that I read in the Rural Missouri paper. I am writing in regards to not having access to high speed internet. The road that we live off of has both DSL and cable internet available, however, the DSL company century link has told me that they have no more ports available so we could not have DSL. The cable company charter has told me that my house is too far from the road so they are not willing to service me. In either case, with some form of line extension to my house from the main line there would be at least 2 other houses that currently do not have broadband internet that would be able to have access if one of the two companies would be willing to improve their infrastructure. Any help in this matter would be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Sincerely,
