DOUG KINKOPH: Okay. So I will close it out. I do want to reiterate that we are -- you can meet with Karen over here or Sandeep and Dana and Keith Adams if you want to do technical assistance. Karen's going to be looking at the Community Connect Initiative so, if anybody wants to stay around and do that, we're here.

Also, do we have a slide for the contact information -- that if you can't stick around, I want to see if there's contact information that you could reach out to us on the technical assistance information, etc.

There are a few people I'd like to thank from NTIA for pulling this all together because it's never possible -- it always comes off fairly easy, but there's a lot of work that goes into it. Barb Brown, Giselle Sanders, Pandora Beasley, Joel Tessler, and Aimee Meacham are the team that pulled this together for NTIA. So thank you. [Applause]

And then just a few thank yous to Keith Adams for RUS. It's always good to work with Keith. He's been a great partner.

John Windhausen, thank you. Lunch today was on you and we appreciate that and for being a great partner on the broadband issues.

Dana Shaffer with the FCC and Mayor McAllister and Commissioner Sandoval, thank you for participating.

And, with that, I'm going to close this out and thank you all for staying to the end. Thank you. [Applause]
